Avery is an associate in the family law group at Beard Winter. Avery has experience advocating for clients on various matters such as parenting decision-making, parenting time, child support, spousal support, property division, cohabitation agreements, separation agreements and marriage contracts.

Avery Tiplady places empathy for his clients at the heart of his practice. His desire to cultivate a legal career grounded in care and compassion is what initially drew him into the practice of family law. Avery prides himself on being able to have honest, and sometimes difficult discussions with his clients which helps advise them on the most reasonable options moving forward.

In his practice, Avery appreciates having the opportunity to help individuals through some of the biggest challenges of their personal lives. His work often helps reunite families, or fight for clients to get the resources and support they need for a fresh start.

Avery believes that a deep understanding of client needs and perspectives is essential to practicing family law effectively. This means taking the time to listen, and considering the unique circumstances of each client. Avery is prepared to handle all avenues of family law whether that requires alternative dispute resolution such as mediation or arbitration, or litigation, if necessary.

Although Avery is a relatively recent call to the bar, he has already gained notable experience as a litigator. Avery articulated and practiced at a reputable downtown Vancouver family law firm, which allowed him to experience various high-net worth complex family law matters. Avery moved to Ontario in September 2023, where he practiced at a large firm in Hamilton before joining Beard Winter.
